Louise and David Prince have returned to Carmel, having come down from the city Sunday evening with their aunt, Mrs. H. J. Wardlaw.

Pine Needles

Mrs. Roy Newberry and children spent last week in San Jose, visiting with relatives and friends.

Roy Babcock seems to have got in right at Camp Lewis. His first detail was "kitchen police." Now he is reported to be suprintending the erection of a large camp postoffice.

Mr. and Mrs. Hitchcock also wish to express their gratitude to the Carmel Red Cross chapter for kindness shown their son Henry, who is now at American Lake, Washington.

Mrs. Stella Vincent is enjoying a two-weeks rest from her postoffice duties. Soon the heavy holiday business will be in full swing.

Mrs. Delos Curtis left last Friday for a ten days' visit in San Francisco and vicinity.

Ludovic Brenner spent a few days in the city last week, visiting with his actor friend, Norman Hackett, with whom he played in "Kick In."

Mrs. H. H. Bawden and little Carmelita Pepper went up to the city for a few days last week.

D. W. W. Johnson and wife are great travelers. Only recently they returned from Los Angeles. Last week they spent a few days at Colfax.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin C. Hogle are here for a two weeks' stay. They expect to spend the winter in Los Angeles. Mrs. Hogle was formerly Miss Maud Lyons.

Mrs. Pauline Duriee and Mrs. M. L. Huntington are here from Lakeville, Sonoma county. They will spend the winter in Carmel.

The Reading Circle, which was such a delightful success last Fall, will be repeated this year. The first meeting was held at the home of Mrs. I. B. Waterbury last Wednesday evening, and Miss Ida A. Johnson read from "Pickwick Papers."

Quality Roofing.—Ask for Pioneer Flaxine Roofing. U. S. Gov't and State of Cal. using large quantities. Ben Leidig, Carmel distributor.

The Supervisors have invested $100,000 of the county's money in the new Liberty Loan bonds.

Luis F. Wolter of Carmel Valley and Dewey Oliver from down the Coast reported to the commission board at Salinas yesterday for physical examination.

Mrs. W. E. Moore was down from San Francisco for a few days last week, visiting with the Misses Etta and Minnie Tilton.

Glenn Hughes' volume of verse entitled "Souls" will be placed on sale this month by Paul Elder. A critic writes: "The author echoes the inmost thoughts of those who see life in all its moods—in its sadness and in its gladness—and find joy in the living."

For the accomodation of taxpayers of Carmel and vicinity Tax-collector J. E. Hunter will be at the office of the Monterey Investment Co. on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, October 25, 26 and 27, from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m.

Leo O'Connell came down from Mare Island last Saturday evening for a brief visit with his mother and sister.

Edward Rigney, who for years has had charge of important work in the Panama Canal Zone, was a visitor here last week. For a time it was thought he had been submarined.

Miss Ivy Pesante, who formerly taught in the local school, now in the Salinas school department, visited a number of friends here on Sunday.

Dr. H. N. Rowell of Berkeley, a delegate to the Elk's convention at Monterey, renewed acquaintance with several Carmel folks last week.

Miss Stella Guichard is in the city this week on business and pleasure. Miss Etna is here from Ben Lomond, to take charge of the store.

Henry W. Hitchcock and Ernest Meadows were among those present last Wednesday evening at the banquet in honor of the departing soldiers at the Monterey fire house.

To the Road of Perfume

In a STETSON made suit watch yourself gleaming,
In a ship from afar, to the land drawing nigh;
Laden with STETSON dress men, brave to meet danger,

Stalwart of form, fair of skin, and blue of eye.

Shimmering waters, aweary of tossing,
Hopeful of rest, ripple on to the shore;
Dimpling with light as they waver and quiver,
Echoing faintly the ocean's wild roar.

Locked in the arms of the tremulous waters,
Dress in a STETSON suit of beauty abloom;
STETSON can dress you for winter or summer,
And make you feel as in a world of perfume.

Our Weekly Recipe

Sausage and Cabbage Pie

To make this dish shred a cabbage coarsely and place a saucepan with two ounces of fat, a pinch of salt and pepper and about one gill of water. Put it on the fire with a lid lid on and cook slowly. Fry one pound of sausages to a nice color and place them with the cabbage.
Wash the pan out with a little water, which add to the cabbage.
If desired a carrot and an onion can also be added. When done turn out into a pie dish. See that there is sufficient gravy, but if not add a little water or stock. When cold cover with pie crust and bake. Sausages may be replaced by any other meat, and rice added to the cabbage will make this dish more substantial.

CLUB NOTES

By Miss I. A. JOHNSON

The Boys' Club was in full action Monday evening, when a party was given to which the boys invited their girl friends.

Thirty happy, enthusiastic children were present, and more than made the welkin ring over the games and tricks.

A new game was the walking on a string stretched on the floor, looking through the wrong end of an opera-glass. The frantic efforts of some to keep on the string and to avoid falling off into what seemed space, brought forth delighted jeers from those safely on terra firma.

Five of the boys have a society called "The Eye-Peelers' Association," and they contributed a number of tricks with candles, strings and quarters, which last they succeeded in borrowing from the audience.

Abundant and delicious refreshments were given by the many loving friends, to whom we give our grateful thanks.

As the gathering was to celebrate the return of David Prince, the club gave him three cheers. It being also a farewell to Kenneth Goold, he was given the club yell, which requires no further coaching or practice.

At affairs of this kind we feel like exclaiming, "Would that these too, too solid walls would stretch! Would that we had a Community House!"

Miss Roberta Deal went to the city Sunday, and upon her return to the Highlands yesterday Mrs. Pierce departed for the big town, to be away for a few days.

equipped job printing plant.

WEEKLY GREETING

Wondrous is the strength of cheerfulness; altogether past calculation its powers of endurance. Efforts, to be permanently useful, must be, uniformly joyous—a spirit of sunshine, graceful from very gladness, beautiful because bright.—Carlisle.

Echoes From

The Tiring Line

The following letter has been received from a French soldier by a woman stopping at a Pasadena hotel. It is written in English, with the naive expressions of one not long familiar with the language, but conveys in sincerity the feeling of a French soldier:

Vichy, June 15, 1917.

Dear Miss—Some objects were given to me yesterday; they came from an American society. I had a sack in which I saw a letter written in all simplicity by an American heart even at that time beating in community of feeling with us for the triumph of justice in the world. That heart was yours; you had written that letter in October, last year.

Great things have happened since that time and France is proud and happy to have with her a nation so great as United States, fighting with the same soul, the same longing, for the triumph of great ideas.

For the second time our two nations fight for liberty, succoring each other in the most painful moments. And I hope victory shall soon give a reward to our efforts.

French soldiers know that France must be victorious, or torn into pieces, and they fight for national independence, and freedom of their bodies and their souls. A great number of them have fallen on the battle field of Eparges, Verdun, La Somme; many are now deprived of the use of an arm or a leg. And when these men are alone, when there is nobody to pour some words of consolation in their desolated hearts they feel their misery. And it is to those men that your words give some joy. Here I speak of the soldiers of the invaded regions of France. Others, and I am of these, are come from the French colonies of South Africa, and sometimes they are in two or three months without receiving any letter from their parents and relatives. They are happy when they receive wishes and words of consolation given to them by such a kind and generous lady. And on my friends' behalf and my own, I thank you very much and also all the good-hearted men and ladies who think of their brothers, giving their life for the triumph of a great cause.

Prominent Citizen Passes Away

John J. Hebborn, one of Monterey county's best-known citizens, passed away last Friday at Salinas. A wife and four grown children survive him. Mr. Hebborn was very active in public affairs; being president of the Carr Reclamation District, chairman of the Republican county committee, and an officer of the Highway Commission at the time of his death.

Mr. Hebborn was a member of the Masons and of the Elks, the latter organization having charge of the funeral, which took place on Sunday. Mr. Joseph Hitchcock of Carmel was one of the deceased's most intimate friends.

Street Work Discussed by Trustees

With all the members present, and with City Attorney H. G. Jorgensen also on hand to advise, the Carmel-by-the-Sea Board of Trustees participated in an interesting and profitable discussion concerning the improvement of our streets, on Monday evening.

All present were agreed that street improvement is a crying need here; that the work should be done, and quickly. The discussion resolved itself into an effort to find adequate ways and means. Ocean Avenue will probably be done first.

But before any actual work can be done, it was found absolutely essential that a ground survey be made, and to this end an efficient engineer will consult with the board this week.

The question, "Do the Trustees really mean business," and the Pine Cone replies with an emphatic affirmative.

The only other matter taken up at this meeting was the passage of the all-important garbage ordinance, which will be published in full in next week's Pine Cone.

How Stevenson Came to Marry His Wife Twice

Every item concerning the life of Robert Louis Stevenson has grown to be of the greatest interest, yet one of the most romantic incidents chances to be little known; that is the fact of his marrying his wife twice. This is how it came about:

Stevenson was a typical Bohemian and his wanderings on one occasion found him in the south of France sick and penniless. A humane family gave him shelter and cared for him until he was well again. In the same house was a widow and her daughter. The widow, several years Stevenson's senior helped nurse him. They were married shortly afterwards, and the newspapers published detailed accounts of it.

Several months later, Stevenson received a letter written from California from a Mr. Osborne, who said he had read the account of the marriage, and, from the description, he was satisfied she was his wife. The letter went on to state that the writer did not care to disturb their relation should Mrs. Stevenson prove to be his wife. They had never been congenial, and he was very willing she should be the bride of another. He added he had no doubt she had acted in thorough good faith in representing herself to be a widow for he had, years before, gone off on a sailing vessel, which had been wrecked, and he had been published as being among the lost. He had not cared to correct the impression, hence his wife had every reason to believe him dead.

Stevenson replied that he would at once meet him in San Francisco and see about the matter. He and his wife went to San Francisco, and as a peevish suitor, unknown to her husband. It was agreed that Mrs. Stevenson should sue Mr. Osborne for a divorce, which was done, and directly it was granted the ex-Mrs. Stevenson became again Mrs. Stevenson, with all legal formalities, the first husband displaying a most friendly spirit, even to the extent of giving the bride away.

Not the least curious fact of the altogether unusual case was that Osborne himself was married a day or two later. Mr. and Mrs. Stevenson being the most honored guests at the ceremony.

Stevenson often said that he inherited his love for adventure and the unusual from his mother. She is really a remarkable person, and is described by one of her intimate friends as being a fine-grained, wiry, active little Scotch woman, wonderfully young looking for her age, and filled to the finger tips with romance and the spirit of adventure. Person who have traveled with the family say that the elder Mrs. Stevenson looked younger than her daughter-in-law, and that whenever the party found themselves in danger of any kind, whether an upset or a shipwreck or any accident that assured excitement—it mattered not what—the old lady was in perfect delight.

Tomorrow is Discovery Day. The public school will not be closed, but the postoffice will maintain Sunday hours.

J. F. Devendorf is spending this week at Paso Robles. There he will rest and take the baths.

The Wyatt's guests, Mrs. Annie Erskine and her two daughters, who were here for about ten days, have returned to San Jose.

Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Slevin motored to Morgan Hill on Tuesday, to visit the Adams family.

D. A. Leonard and family will close their cottage here this week, returning to their home at Dos Palos.

Miss Delmas, with a party of friends, motored down from San Jose a few days ago, and occupied the Friant bungalow while here.

The Covingtons—mother and two daughters—are here again. They have rented the Reardon cottage for an indefinite time.

The weekly food sale for the benefit of the Carmel Methodist Church, will be held tomorrow afternoon at Schweninger's Grocery.

Company A, 8th Field Battalion, U. S. Signal Corps, erected a wireless in the woods of the Eighty-acre Tract a few days ago. It was an imposing, though temporary, structure. Messages were sent and received. It was only practice, but interesting in these times of war.
